

Message To The Pyro Pups

To any current or former Pyro Pups, I'm so sorry to each and every one of you that I've disappointed. I can imagine what it must've felt like to have someone you look up to be revealed as a monster, and your community torn apart. I made a poorly put together statement and disappeared, leaving you all angry, confused, and lost. Many of you lost faith in me. I'm sorry I haven't said anything sooner, but I hope now you can at least understand why.

I've received messages from many Pyro Pups who were hurt. Some of these people I personally knew and had met in person. It broke my heart hearing how many of them viewed me after this, but I understand. To any Pyro Pups who choose not to support me going forward, I can accept that. Thank you for everything you've done for me over the years. I'm glad I could be your o-kami oshi for the time I was. I only ask that you continue to love and support your new favorite creators the same way you did for me.

I've also gotten lots of messages from Pyro Pups in support of me, encouraging me to go on. To those of you who've continued to believe in me, thank you. I appreciate you keeping the fire of the community burning all this time. I've read your messages and they've given me the hope that I could make it through this. You've shown me that there's something to come back to. That includes the moderators who've stuck around and managed my Discord server and the community in my absence. I can't thank you enough for your help keeping everyone together.

To anyone who's sent hate or harassment "in support of me", you are not a Pyro Pup. You are not my fan. You are deplorable, disgusting, and I do not want anything to do with you. I've never condoned or encouraged that behavior from anyone, for any reason, and the circumstances haven't made me sacrifice my morals. That goes for anyone who does the same after this document is posted. What's done is done, and regardless of what I've said in this document, it's not an excuse to harass anyone named here. Leave them alone or you will be removed from my community. I want to sincerely apologize again to anyone who has been affected by these people.

The Pyro Pups have been the best community I could've ever asked for, and I've been incredibly lucky to have them. They have never been just numbers to me. I love going live and talking to them for hours on end. Hanging out with them made me smile when I was upset, and they've always been there for me. They're the reason why I was ever able to do any of the cool things I could. Not only have they shown me immense kindness for the time I've been streaming, they've done the same for each other. They have each other's backs, help each other when they can, encourage each other, and are a positive force to anyone they interact with. I'm happy I could inspire them to do good, make friends, and tap into their creativity. They're all so talented and I'm grateful for the vast amount of fan art I've gotten from them too. Even if they aren't supporting me anymore, or if I was no longer around, I know now that being a Pyro Pup will continue to mean much more than just being a fan of mine. They're incredibly strong, loving, and I'm very proud of them. I will always be indebted to them for everything they've done for me.

Red: Hey gang, I need to apologize to you all too. It's my fault any of this happened in the first place. My mistakes sent Sinder into hiding and left you all questioning what to do. I'm sorry I caused all of this. I hope you can still support Sinder and the projects we create in the future. Thank you to those who've stuck around. Your support has been a big help.
